When they sat down to rest, they noticed a tiny kitten peeking out from under a bush. The kitten looked frightened.

"Perhaps she is lost," said the man with the yellow hat.

Together, he and George searched the park for the little kitten's owner. But the kitten was all alone.

"This kitten is too young to be on her own," the man said. "We should take her to the animal shelter, where they can care for her and find her a home."

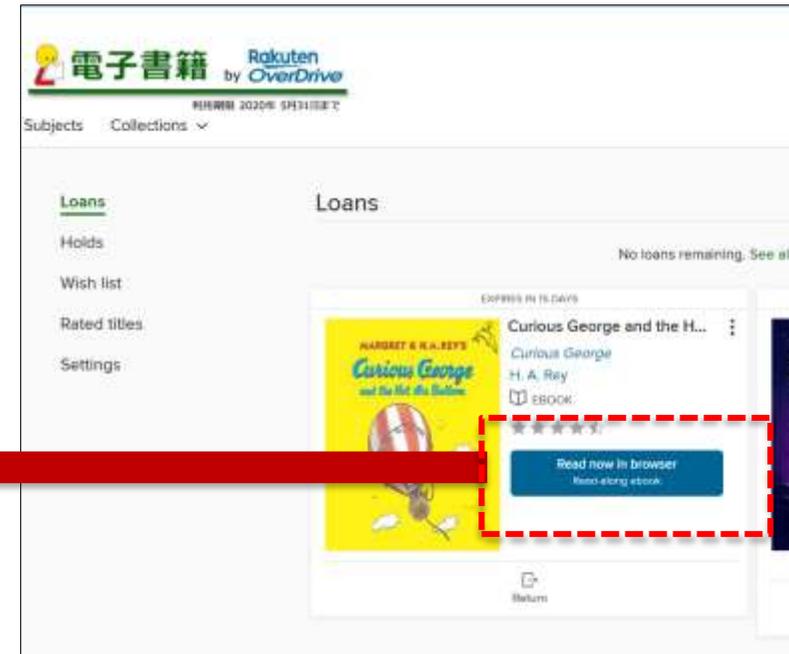

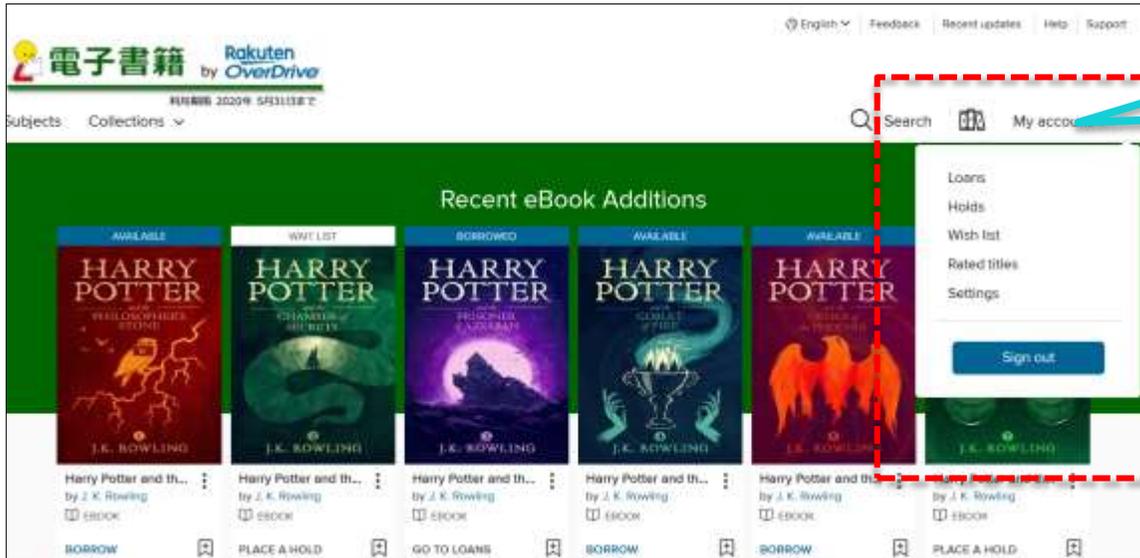

So George and the kitten and the man with the yellow hat drove to the animal shelter.
